Moon jellies, probably the most common jelly in the Northwest, have a mild sting that doesn’t affect most people.